

Sell this house

Reality show makes over 2
O'ahu homes

By Zenaida Serrano Espanol
ADVERTISER STAFF WRITER

The million-dollar home Cinda Glor walked into looked like anything but a million bucks.

The first thing the 51-year-old real estate agent noticed in the Hawai'i Loa Ridge estate was the clutter: a large sofa, piano, 60-inch television set, mismatched chairs, workout equipment and a mess of collectibles were crammed into the living room.

"It has a great view, but I had a hard time seeing it, because my eyes were drawn to a lot of the clutter," Glor said. "It definitely needed some help."

Homeowners Soon and Kyong Chang have been trying to sell the four-bedroom, 2½-bath home on Hawai'i Loa Ridge for about two months, and they welcomed A&E's "Sell this House" to work their magic.

A crew from the home-design reality show filmed the makeover of two homes, including the Changs', last week. Producers say

See 'SELL,' E5

TOP: "Sell This House" designer Roger Hazard, host Tanya Memme and crew make over a home that's for sale on Hawai'i Loa Ridge. The A&E show will feature the home, and one in Kāne'ohe, in a future episode. RIGHT: Outside the million-dollar Hawai'i Loa Ridge property.

Coldwell Banker Pacific Properties photos
Top left, bottom right photos, REBECCA BREYER
• The Honolulu Advertiser